Prof. Kelly Miller Pays Tribute to Work of Negro Educator.

Memorial Services Held at 12th Street Y. M. C. A. by Mu-So-Lit Club.

Tribute was paid to the memory of the late Dr. Booker T. Washington at a meeting of the Mu-So-Lit Club last vening at the 12th street branch of the Y. M. C. A. Prof. Kelly Miller, dear of the College of Arts and Sciences o Howard University, was the principal speaker, delivering an eulogy of the colored educator.

"The death of Booker T. Washington removes from the sphere of active influence the most commanding figure of the negro race," said Prof. Miller. "For nearly a quarter of a century he has stood in the forefront of racial movements, shaping the policy and direct-ing the procedure for ten millions of American citizens. He has been the accepted spokesman and ambassador of his people to the great white race."

Mind an Illumined One.

"The marvelous accomplishments of Booker T. Washington were but the outgrowth of his character," Prof. Miller continued. "He had an illumined mind and an enlightened understanding, like Abraham Lincoln; he always followed the leading of that inner light, which served as a lamp unto his feet and a guide unto his pathway. He was always calm and composed while all around was excitement and confusion, for he relied with fullest confidence upon the assurance of intuition and a certitude of instinct. He knew the race problem in all of its ramifications perhaps better than any man who has ever lived. This knowledge was gained not merely as a result of wide information and experience, but through innate understanding of complex human relationship.

"Mr. Washington was endowed with an unusual element of commen sense. ing, like Abraham Lincoln; he always

"Mr. Washington was endowed with an unusual element of commen sense. His was the philosophy of the commonplace; the explication of simple things. Like Aesop, Epectetus and Benjamin Franklin, he seized upon the folk-thought and folk-sense of the common people and set them forth in pointed phrases.

For Elevation of Race.

"Mr. Washington never, in avowed erms, denied the importance of political rights upon the welfare of the race, out, feeling assured that there was little hope of immediate restoration of such rights, he placed the stress of such rights, he placed the stress of emphasis upon the sobriety, industry and thrift as the means by which the negro might elevate himself into the full stature of an American citizen. He emphasized duties rather than rights, and urged the race to take advantage of its opportunities rather than to waste its energies by impotent grieving over the disadvantages of its wrongs.

ing over the disadvantages of the wrongs.

"A violent contest arose within the race as to the wisdom of his general policy. This controversy was inevitable; the offense must needs come. If the white people of America are to be considered the jury, the verdict was all but unanimous in Mr. Washington's favor."

favor."
Grant Lucas, president of the club, presided. Roscoe C. Bruce, assistant superintendent of schools of the District of Columbia, was chairman of the committee on memorial resolutions, on which committee were Dr. A. S. Gray, Prof. George W. Cook, James A. Cobb, Judge Robert H. Terrell, Garnet C. Wilkinson, Dr. A. M. Curtis, Arthur C. Newman and William L. Houston.

Other Features of Program.

Musical selections were given by H . Amos and Harry Nugent of the Euterpean Quartet, instrumental solos by Prof. Roy W. Tibbs and Herndon B. ones and an appropriate poem was recited by Thomas A. Heathman.

Among the members who paid brief Among the members who paid brief tributes to the memory of Dr. Washington were E. C. Williams, principal of the M Street High School; A. F. Hilyer, with whom Dr. Washington was associated on the board of trustees of Howard University; R. W. Thompson, Walter J. Singleton, J. Le. Chestnut and Prof. George W. Note the quality of the woodwork. There is some design about it. It is perfectly smoothed, and Then examine carefully our stairs and see how they are put up. We have a man who has been doing nothing for thirty years except stair-building, who puts ours up, and he works for us by the year. It stairs can be built. Do you live in a house where
